daughter of the territory is the amazing life story of jacqueline hammar born in darwin in 1929 jacqueline's childhood was spent in a succession of bush towns before she was sent to school in darwin with the outbreak of world war two she moved to brisbane to finish her education returning to her beloved territory jacqueline met and married stockman ken hammar and they moved to a vast property in one of the most inaccessible areas of australia transporting corrugated iron and cutting down trees to build a crude hut to live in with only a kerosene stove scant possessions and a bed jacqueline lived a harsh and isolated existence her determination and courage helped her survive many hardships including having to eat pigweed and sweet potato vines when food was scarce meanwhile she supported ken as he turned huge tracts of wilderness into a prosperous million acre cattle station daughter of the territory is a testament to a life well lived reminiscent of ab facey's a fortunate life and sara henderson's from strength to strength jacqueline's life story is remarkable mothers can enjoy a steaming cup of tea while they read through heart warming stories of motherhood as they go through this day and every day this lively book brings the reader close to the people from a remote cattle station in far north australia where black and white peoples lives have been intertwined over the span of 80 years tracing the humorous savage and ordinary ways in which race structured intimate and everyday relationships across a great divide gillian cowlshaw makes startling and original arguments about race relations by investigating specific patterns of interaction on australia's cultural frontier rednecks eggheads and blackfellas illustrates how anthropologists pastoralists and government officials squabbled about aborigines as they intruded into their country controlled aspects of their lives and dominated the way they were represented in the public realm the ironic title hints that the difference between redneck pastoralists and egghead anthropologists is not so great as might be imagined aborigines were central to the projects of both kinds of whitefellas weaving the shifts in government policy and public opinion with accounts of their sometimes ludicrous impact on outback communities this book brings to life the complexities of living with racial categories and it asks why increasingly enlightened anti racist policies seldom seem to have worked as intended even in this era of self determination this thought provoking work will speak not only to anthropologists and those interested in aboriginal australia but to scholars of race more generally especially in the burgeoning field of whiteness studies
